"How do you feel today, Uncle Wiggily" asked Nurse Jane Furzy Wuzzy, the muskrat lady housekeeper of the bunny rabbit gentleman, one morning "Why, I feel just fine!" he cried, with his pink none twinkling so fast that it looked like a milkman winking at a cat. "I feel so fine, since Thanksgiving, that I could lift a basket full of soap bubbles if I had to."

"Good and strong! I should say so!"
exclaimed the bunny.

"That's good," said Nurse Jane, and she smiled some more. "Then perhaps you'll clean the cellsr for me. It needs to be put in order before Christmas, and if you'll do it, why I'll be very glad."

"Oh! Umi Dear me, sus dud'" cried the bunny, dublous like. "Oh, yes, of course. The cellar. Well, of course, I'll clean it." clean it."

Then he looked at Nurse Jane and laughed. He saw what a pickle he had made of himself—a regular bit of speed cabbage, so to speak—by saying how atrong he was.

Soli.

So he swept and he set things back, and the coal dust and the floor dust and the floor dust and the coal dust and the floor dust and the ashes and cinders got all over kim and on his face. He didn't mind his clothes so much, as they were old ones, just good for cleaning celiars. But the dust, getting on his nose and cheeks and eyes, sort of made them tickle, and when he rubbed the places with his paws—well, you get my meaning, I dare say. Uncle Wiggliy looked quite unlike himself.

He was in the middle of cleaning the celiar, and he had just rubbed a nice, big black smudge of dirt on the end of his pink nose when all of a sudden a voice called at the back celiar door: "Uncle Wiggliy, are you down there?" "Why, yes," answered the bunny, and his voice sounded sort of muffled like and far away, as, just then, he had his head down in a barrel of last year's sawdust. "Who are you and what do you want?" he asked.

"Please come here and you'll find out." was the answer.

The carcass should be cooled after slaughtering, but not allowed to freeze. Temperature can not be controlled on the farm, but it is possible to kill when the farm, but it is possible to kill when the weather is favorable. Select a day in winter when there is chance for cooling the carcass before the surface freezes. The desirable temperature for cooling meat is 34 to 40 degrees F. In the summer time it is necessary to have refrigeration. In the fall it is best to kill in the evening, allowing the carcass to cool over night. Hang the carcass in a dark celiar or a cool room in the barn before the flies can get at it. Freshly killed meat absorbs odors very readily; do not hang the cargass in a freshly painted room or in a foom with tar, kerosene, or gasoline.

REDUCING FIRE DANGER.

REDUCING FIRE DANGER.

The fire hazard should be considered in the location and construction of all new farm buildings. Many groups of farm buildings are so located and constructed that any fire which might break out in one building would be almost sure to destroy the whole group. When a new building is to be erected it is worth while at least to consider placing it where it will be reasonably safe from fire starting in any other building and where it will not be a menace to other buildings.

Concrete construction is being used on many farms, and it is especially desirable for amokehouses, incubator rooms and any other small buildings which are exceptionally subject to loss by fire. The first cost of a well-constructed concrete building generally will be greater than that of a wood building of the same size, but the concrete will last practically forever and will seldom need paint or repairs.

A fire in such a building can do but slight damage to the building itself, and there is very little likelihood of its spreading to any of the adjoining buildings.

to kill at least three or four of the infidels who rule over him, for the infidels who rule over him, for the enemies of God and of the faith. Let every Moslem know that his reward for doing so shall be doubled by the God who created heaven and earth. A Moslem who does this shall be saved from the terrors of the day of judgment, of the resurrection of the dead. Who is the man who can refuse such a recompense for such a small deed?

Yet the time has come that we should rise up as the rising of one man, in one hand a sword, in the other a gun, in his pocket balls of fire and death-dealing missiles, and in his heart the light of the faith, and that we should lift up our voices, raying India for the Indian Moslems, Java for the Javanese Moslems, Algeria for the Algerian Moslems, Morocco for the Moroccan Moslems, Tunis for the Turanian Moslems, Turan for the Turanian Moslems, Bokhara for the Bokharan Moslems, Bokhara for the Bokharan Moslems, Caucasis for the Caucasian Moslems, and the Ottoman empire for the Ottoman Turks and Araba."

Specific instructions for carrying out this holy purpose follow. There shall be a "heart war"—every follower of the ropophet, that is, shall constantly nourish in his spirit a harred of the infidel; a "speech war"—with longue and pen every Moslem shall spread this same hatred wherever Mohammedans

DUCTORS SAY CALOTABS ARE BEST FOR COLDS

According to the world's greatest physical and and medical experts, calomel is the best and only dependable remedy for breaking up a cold overnight or cutting short an attack of sore throat, deep-scated cough, influenza or la grippe. Now that science has purified calomel of all its nausca and dangerous qualities, the new kind of calomel, called "Calotabs" is even more popular than the old style.

One Calotab on the tongue at bed time with a swallow of water—that's all. No saits, no nausca nor the slightest interference with your diet, work or pleasures. Next morning your cold has vanished and your whole system is purified and refreshed. Calotabs are sold only in original scaled packages, price thirty-flye cents. Your druggist recommends and guarantees Calotabs and will refund the price if you are not delighted with them.
